We, therefore, respectfully petition your Excellency, as the Governor of our great Christian Commonwealth, and Commander-in-Chief of the State National Guard, to issue an order that this review be held on some other day of the week than the Sabbath. House Robbed.

On Friday morning the house of Abraham Rife, Cumberland township, about a mile north of this place was the scene of a bold robbery, forty dollars being taken from a pocket book, but by evening the thief was lodged in jail, having been caught at Biglerville by constable Morrell and brought to Gettysburg by Detective Wilson.

There was no one at the Rife home, when the theft occurred. Mr. Rife was working in the field and his wife and children were picking berries in the woods a short distance away. While there she saw a man walking about the house, but paid no attention to him, thinking it was one of the neighbors. The man disappeared for a short time, but on his reappearance he walked toward where Mrs. Rife was in the bushes, she noticed he was counting money. Mrs. Rife hurried home, and going up stairs found an empty pocket book lying on the floor, which she knew had contained about $40 and she at once called in some of the neighbors, Mr. Amos Miller, Mr. Rife and several men who were in the vicinity, together with the force working on the avenue, who saw the thief pass, started in pursuit. Detective Wilson in the meantime had been sent for and the party searched the woods thoroughly but no trace was found.

Detective Wilson telephoned to numerous places to be on the lookout for the man, and late in the afternoon Biglerville asked for a further description. It was furnished and shortly afterward Constable Morrell arrested Frank Smith, of Walkeshare without difficulty, although a loaded revolver was found on him. Detective Wilson immediately went to Biglerville and brought Smith to Gettysburg where he was lodged in jail, he stoutly declared his innocence, but when searched the money was found in his shoes between the lining and leather, where he had hidden it. The man was about 24 years of age.

EX-PRES. CLEVELAND DEAD PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY AT HIS PRINCETON HOME.

Death Due to Heart Failure and Stomach Ailments—Wife at His Bedside.

Grover Cleveland, the last ex-President of the United States, died at 10:04 a. m., Wednesday, June 24th, at his home in Trenton, N. J.
Mr. Cleveland had been in poor health for several months past, his ailment being a complication of stomach and liver troubles. While he was seriously ill six weeks ago, his condition since that time had, apparently, greatly improved, and the news of his death therefore came with an added shock to the country.
The announcement of Mr. Cleveland's death was not made public at once. The physicians prepared a statement as to the cause of death and the statement and announcement were made together.
Mr. Cleveland's death was sudden. Mrs. Cleveland was at his bedside when he died.
Grover Cleveland was born in Caldwell, Essex Co., N. J., March 18, 1837, the son of a Presbyterian clergyman, Rev. Richard Falley Cleveland, and Anna Neal Cleveland.
As a boy he had few advantages except an academic education. In 1855 he entered a law office in Buffalo, N. Y., as clerk, at wages of $4 per week. He read law there and was admitted superb courage.

His two administrations will, when history is written at the proper perspective, be held up as among the ablest in the chronicles of this government. He reasserted the Monroe doctrine in a manner which was not soon forgotten by European nations and his administration of domestic affairs was accepted by everybody as on the whole wise and beneficial.
Since his retirement from office and contemplation of his work, unbiassed by political prejudice or rancor, has more clearly shown his wisdom, his patriotism and the value of his services, he has commanded the esteem and the admiration of everybody, without regard to party, and there will be widespread regret because of his death. He was the last living ex-President.

The Funeral.

The last remains of Grover Cleveland lie buried in the Cleveland plot in Princeton cemetery. At 6 o'clock last Friday, just as the sun was sinking in the west, a distinguished company silently watched as the body was lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian Church was read, and before the last of the carriages in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place, the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave were leaving the cemetery. Many of the personal friends of the great statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place, and each in turn was permitted to cast a shovelful of earth into the grave.
Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs.

to the bar in 1879. He was a few years later appointed assistant district attorney of Erie county.
In 1876 he was elected sheriff of Erie county.
In 1881 he was elected mayor of Buffalo.
In 1882 he was chosen Governor of New York State by the great majority of almost 290,000.
In 1884 he was elected President of the United States.
In 1888 he was a candidate for reelection but was defeated by Benjamin Harrison.
In 1892 he was again elected President and served until his successor, William McKinley, took the oath of office, March 4, 1897.
Since then he made his home in Princeton, surrounded by his charming family. He was frequently called upon to make public addresses and was tendered very many lucrative places and posts of honor but declined them all. He did, however, consent to assist in the reorganization of one of the big life insurance companies after the scandal that followed their investigation.

President Cleveland, on June 2, 1886, married Frances Folsom, daughter of his former law partner. She was one of the most gracious and best loved of the mistresses of the White House. Mr. Cleveland and three children survive Mrs. Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland was a Democrat who believed implicitly in his party doctrine but who did not hesitate to denounce the influence of his party men who were Democrats for spoils only.

He was a President of the wide knowledge of the affairs of his country, of superior statesmanship and of

Two Runaways.

On Wednesday evening, what might have been a serious runaway occurred on Lincoln street. The Misses Gilliland of near town, accompanied by Miss Fritchey, of Lincoln Ave. and a guest of Miss Fritchey, Miss Dorwest, were going for a drive, and as they were about to start from the home of Mrs. True, one of the ladies dropped a line causing the horse to start. The horse ran to Carlisle street where it turned out the Carlisle road. When a short distance the other side of the avenue an obstruction overturned the carriage breaking it badly and throwing the occupants out. The ladies escaped, except Misses Fritchey and Dorwest, who sustained ugly bruises.

Howard Ridinger was the victim of an ugly runaway on South Washington street last Thursday evening. He was driving out that street when several boys approached beating on a barrel with a stick. Mr. Ridinger had a young horse and signalled to the boys to stop. They kept on however and the horse ran off and ran against a telephone pole smashing the buggy and throwing Mr. Ridinger out. A GUEST.

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

Is New Name Adopted by the German Baptist Brethren.

The General Conference of the German Baptist Brethren which was in session during ten days of this month at New York, has voted to change the name of the church to the Church of the Brethren.

The act that the members of the church in this country came from Germany and the fact that the German name of the church was in itself was a hindrance. Many people, especially those in the large cities, were of the opinion that the services were held in German because the church was known as the German Baptist.

To do away with this misrepresentation, the General Conference changed the name of the sect to the "Church of the Brethren." This was one of the most important things done at the conference.

The suffing air of a close kitchen is changed to comfortable coolness by installing a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove to do the family cooking.

No kitchen furnishing is so convenient as this stove. Gives a working heat at once, and maintains it until turned out—that too, without overheating the room. If you examine the you will see why this is so. The heat from the chimney of the "New Perfection" is concentrated under the kettle and not dissipated through the room by radiation. Thus it does the work of the coal range without its discomfort. Ask your dealer about this stove—if not with him, write our nearest agency.

Ministerial Association Protest.

The following is a copy of the Memorial prepared in accordance with the action of the Ministerial Association Monday afternoon, and to be presented to the Governor of the State by the officers of the association: Gettysburg, Pa., June 29, 1908. To His Excellency, Edwin H. Stuart, Governor of the State of Pennsylvania. Respected and Dear Sir:—Whereas it has been announced that the Grand Review of the State National Guard, which will be in camp at this place in July, is to take place on Sunday, July 19th, we the undersigned, officers of the Ministerial Association of Gettysburg, by order of the Association, and spreading also for the Christian churches of this community, of which we are pastors, do most earnestly represent to you that such action would involve a great and unnecessary desecration of the Lord's Day, which all Christian people hold sacred as a day of rest and worship.

We, therefore, respectfully petition your Excellency, as the Governor of our great Christian Commonwealth, and Commander-in-Chief of the State National Guard, to issue an order that this review be held on some other day of the week than the Sabbath. We believe that such an order would win the hearty approval and commendation of all our Christian citizens throughout the State.

House Robbed.

On Friday morning the house of Abraham Rife, Cumberland township, about a mile north of this place was the scene of a bold robbery, forty dollars being taken from a pocket book, but by evening the thief was lodged in jail, having been caught at Biglerville by constable Morrell and brought to Gettysburg by Detective Wilson. There was no one at the Rife home, when the theft occurred. Mr. Rife was working in the field and his wife and children were picking berries in the woods a short distance away. While there she saw a man walking about the house but paid no attention to him, thinking it was one of the neighbors. The man disappeared for a short time, but on his reappearance he walked toward where Mrs. Rife was counting money. Mrs. Rife hurried home, and going upstairs found an empty pocket book lying on the floor, which she knew had contained about $40 and she at once called in some of the neighbors, Mr. Amos Miller, Mr. Rife and several men who were in the vicinity, together with the force working on the avenue, who saw the thief pass, started in pursuit. Detective Wilson in the meantime had been sent for and the party searched the woods thoroughly but no trace was found.

Detective Wilson telephoned to numerous places to be on the lookout for the man, and late in the afternoon Biglerville asked for further description. It was furnished and shortly afterward Constable Morrell arrested Frank Smith, of Wilkes-Barre without difficulty, although a loaded revolver was found on him. Detective Wilson immediately went to Biglerville and brought Smith to Gettysburg where he was lodged in jail. He stoutly declared his innocence, but when searched the money was found in his shoes between the lining and leather, where he had hurriedly placed it. The man was about 24 years of age.

EX-PRES. CLEVELAND DEAD PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY AT HIS PRINCETON HOME.

Death Due to Heart Failure and Stomach Ailments—Wife at His Bedside.

Grover Cleveland, the last ex-President of the United States, died at 10:04 a. m., Wednesday, June 24th, at his home in Princeton, N. J.

Mr. Cleveland had been in poor health for several months past, his ailment being a complication of stomach and liver troubles. While he was seriously ill six weeks ago, his condition since that time had, apparently, greatly improved, and the news of his death therefore came with an added shock to the country.

The announcement of Mr. Cleveland's death was not made public at once. The physicians prepared a statement as to the cause of death and the statement and announcement were made together.

Mr. Cleveland's death was sudden. Mrs. Cleveland was at his bedside when he died.

Grover Cleveland was born in Caldwell, Essex Co., N. J., March 18, 1837, the son of a Presbyterian clergyman. Rev. Richard Falley Cleveland, and Anna Neal Cleveland.

As a boy he had few advantages except an academic education. In 1855 he entered a law office in Buffalo, N. Y., as clerk, at wages of $4 per week. He read law there and was admitted superb courage. His two administrations will, when history is written at the proper perspective, be held up as among the ablest in the chronicles of this government. He reasserted the Monroe doctrine in a manner which was not soon forgotten by European nations and his administration of domestic affairs was accepted by everybody as on the whole wise and beneficial. Since his retirement from office and contemplation of his work, unbiassed by political prejudice or rancor, has more clearly shown his wisdom, his patriotism and the value of his services. He has commanded the esteem and the admiration of everybody, without regard to party, and there will be widespread regret because of his death. He was the last living ex-President.

The last remains of Grover Cleveland lie buried in the Cleveland plot in Princeton cemetery. At 6 o'clock last Friday, just as the sun was sinking in the west, a distinguished company silently watched as the body was lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian Church was read, and before the last of the carriages in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place, the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave were leaving the cemetery. Many of the personal friends of the great statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place, and each in turn was permitted to cast a shovelful of earth into the grave.

The Funeral.

Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland the services both at the house and at the cemetery were of the simplest character. An invocation, scriptural reading, a brief prayer and the reading of a poem by William Wordsworth, "Character of the Happy Warrior," constituted the services at the house, while the reading of the burial service at the grave was brief and impressive. Although the funeral was of a strictly private nature, those in attendance numbered many distinguished citizens, including President Roosevelt, Governor Hughes of New York, Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia, former members of President Cleveland's Cabinet, officials of the Equitable Life Insurance Society, members of the Princeton University faculty and friends and neighbors.

Mr. Cleveland was buried with all the simplicity and privacy that he himself might have wished, as a private citizen, rather than as the former Chief Executive of the Nation. There was nothing that savored of the official and the military element was injected solely as a measure of precaution in protecting President Roosevelt.

The President arrived at 4:28 p. m. and was met at the station by Governor Fort. The President, Governor Fort and Secretary Loeb were driven at once to Westland. Upon his arrival at the house the President went to Mrs. Cleveland, offering his sympathy and expressing keen regret at Mr. Cleveland's death.

The President then returned to the reception room where the body had been removed in the afternoon from the room on the second floor in which Mr. Cleveland died.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION MRS. PHILIP HOUCK MADE ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Annual Convention of Temperance Workers Held in the Methodist Church—Interesting Meeting.

The 22nd annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Adams Co., was held in the Methodist church, Gettysburg, Wednesday, June 24th.

Mrs. Helen Keith led the devotional service. Miss E. Belle Griest opened the service by a cheerful greeting, rejoicing in its growth of total abstinence sentiment and the victories prohibiting the traffic in alcoholic liquors, throughout our country.

After the roll call of delegates and appointment of committees, Mrs. Philip Houck welcomed all to our annual gathering and spoke of the uplift and quickened interest received by its members at their meetings. Miss Alma Rice of the Arendtsville Young Woman's Union responded in a neat address telling how glad they were to help in the work and to meet with us. Miss Lillie Dougherty brought greetings from the Senior Legion of our town saying they too are working with us. Then reports of the work of all the Unions and Legions were given. Luther McDowell for the Local Legions and Miss Rice told of the new Legion at Fairmount, less than two months old has doubled its membership.

The Arendtsville Y. W. C. F. U. now cares for three Legions. These all are very active in the Flower Missions and they send large and frequent gifts of fruit, flowers, scrap books and literature to the Hospitals at Harrisburg and also to our County House.

At the noon hour of prayer special mention was made of Miss M. Thompson and Miss Mary Davis, so long faithful members, but kept out of the work by failing health, sympathy was extended to them.

The Executive Committee met after the noon session, some changes were made in the appointment of Superintendents of Departments, one new one Sunday School was being taken up. Mrs. Swartz of New Oxford given charge of it. Reports of the work of the Departments were given, after Mrs. John Sweeney led its devotional services. The following officers were elected: Pres. Miss E. Belle Griest, Vice Pres. Mrs. Helen Keith, Rec. Sec. Mrs. Louise Stable, Cor. Sec. Mrs. Twisden, Treas. Miss Julia Krise.

Mrs. S. B. Norrish of Sayre, Bradford county, Rec. Sec. of the State, who has been in York and Adams counties the past two weeks, in the effort to form Unions in towns where there are none, added much interest to the meeting by helpful information and suggestion. spoke chiefly of its work to be done by the different departments, and how we can help work for the cause of Local Option in our State by its free distribution of our own literature, which we used to some extent before the Primaries. The Treasurer reported a paid up membership of eighty-one. The Union at Bendersville not having been heard from as yet and a few other members not yet reported.

At seven o'clock in the evening there was a union service of the different churches of town held in St. James Church. After singing a hymn Dr. Clutz read Scripture. Dr. Kuhlman introduced Mrs. Norrish, who in a rapid talk of forty minutes, told of the work Woman has been called to do in the history of the world and of the blessing of God attending their labors, and invited those who have not done so, come to the help of the few who in this county for nearly twenty-five years have stood for the cause of "God and Home and Every Land."

An offering was received for some necessary expenses. Miss Ruth Clutz sang with much expression in her sweet voice, "Hold Thou my Hand". Mark Eckert playing her accompaniment.

Rev. Mr. Woods made the closing prayer and pronounced the benediction.

Veteran Corps Excursion.

The Entertainment Committee of the Veteran Corps National Guards of Pa. has arranged for a trip to the Gettysburg battlefield during the National Guard Encampment. A special train of Pullman sleeping cars will leave Broad Street Station, Phila., at 10:00 p. m., on Tuesday July 21, arriving at Gettysburg the next morning in time for breakfast, which will be served in the mess tent of the officers of the First Regiment. Dinner and lunch will also be served here. The comrades have the privilege of inviting the members of their families and friends. A trip over the battlefield, accompanied by a prominent lecturer, will be arranged during the day. Returning the train will leave Gettysburg at 10:00 p. m., Wednesday, July 22. The Corps will come to Gettysburg in citizens dress.

This invitation is extended to members of the Honorary Association and their families. These arrangements can be made effective provided 100 accept the invitation and agree to pay the assessment of $10.00 for each person.

Alarm of Fire.

There was an alarm of fire on Tuesday afternoon, which for a time caused a great deal of excitement; it was caused by burning rubbish on the premises of E. E. Slaybaugh. The sparks from the fire caught some loose hay near the barn, and some of the neighbors seeing the smoke became excited and sent in the alarm. The firemen responded promptly but the fire had been put out before their arrival. No damage was done.

Two Runaways.

On Wednesday evening, what might have been a serious runaway occurred on Lincoln avenue. The Misses Gilliland of near town, accompanied by Miss Fritchey, of Lincoln Ave. and a guest of Miss Fritchey, Miss Dorwest, were going for a drive, and as they were about to start from the home of Mrs. True, one of the ladies dropped a line causing the horse to start. The horse ran to Carlisle street where it turned out the Carlisle road. When a short distance the outside of the avenue an obstruction overturned the carriage breaking it badly and throwing the occupants out. The ladies escaped, except Misses Fritchey and Dorwest, who sustained ugly bruises.

Howard Ridinger was the victim of an ugly runaway on South Washington street last Thursday evening. He was driving out that street when several boys approached riding on a barrel with a stick. Mr. Ridinger had a young horse and signalled to the boys to stop. They kept on however and the horse ran off and ran against a telephone pole smashing the buggy and throwing Mr. Ridinger out. He escaped with some bruises which Dr. Hartman dressed. The horse was caught soon after the accident.

Employees Get an Increase.

Seven employees of the local post office have received notice that their salaries will be increased $100.00 each on July 1st. The increase is made under the act of 1907 and 1 times the salaries of some of the employees up to the limit, $1000. The city carriers, F. Mark Bream, Calvin K. Gilloert and Norton C. Miller will receive $1000 a year instead of $900. James M. McHenry will receive a similar increase while Mrs. George F. Young, Peter C. Stock and George F. Black will be given an increase from $800 to $900.

Overcome by Heat

While sitting on his front porch at 1000 E. York Springs, Marks was overcome by the heat and died. He was carried into the house by neighbors and for a time was in a critical condition, but we understand he is improving.

THE DAYS OF TERROR IN 1863

DESCRIBED BY A CITIZEN WHO LIVED ALONG LINE OF BATTLE

When Gettysburg Presented a More Ragged and Forbidding Appearance Than Ever Before or Since.

The storm of war gathered around our borderland. There were constant rumors and alarms from the time the journey of Mr. Lincoln to Washington for his inauguration, March 4th, then on the 19th of April of that year when the Massachusetts troops were shot at as they passed through Baltimore. Then when the Confederate cavalry general, J. E. B. Stuart made his raid through the Western end of Adams county in 1862, gathering up horses to provide for the need of their service. Then after the defeat of the Union Army at Chancellorsville, and the retreat in the Shenandoah Valley, and the march of Lee's Army to the North, farmers fleeing with their horses through Gettysburg to a place of safety beyond the Susquehanna, and the constant condition of feverish apprehension of the coming of the Rebels, the arrest of spies and deserters, followed by the picking up and shipping away of goods by our merchants, the advance of Early's division, preceded by Elkhart White's Guerrillas dashing through the streets and alleys of the town, in pursuit of Union soldiers in the last days of June, when the killing of George W. Sandoe on the Baltimore turnpike occurred. Then came Wednesday, July 1st, when Buford's cavalry poured through our streets over the Chambersburg pike, and met the advance of the enemy. The battle had commenced. I was living then on East Middle street, next to what is now the Methodist church, with a wife and three little daughters, the youngest not two years old. Hearing the firing started on the Mummasburg road towards my father's farm and commenced ascending the ridge, thinking when I reached the top, I would have a view of the contending forces, but on my way up, I was unexpectedly saluted by a shell, which fell not far from me and which had the effect of utterly removing all the curiosity I had entertained, and I beat a hasty retreat, not in the best order either, to my home, where I found my wife and children in tears over my absence, and in fear for my safety.

I saw the fearless General Reynolds with his mounted staff ride out from the public square to the front, and to his death. I saw Archer's Confederate brigade brought through our streets, disheartened and humiliated by their capture, and taken to the rear, down the Baltimore turnpike. Then came back our wounded, some in ambulances, some on stretchers, some being able to walk. In common with many others of our citizens, we brought out water to relieve the thirst of the dust covered soldiers in Blue, wearing with the strife, occasionally giving a glass of wine to one who was weak and feeble from loss of blood. This was the constant moving panorama. The hours passed on until the middle of the afternoon. My wife in the yard was dressing the hand of a New York soldier, whose thumb had been shot off, when he observed some Union soldiers getting over the fence into the then vacant lot upon which the Methodist church was afterwards built. His experienced eye understood what that meant. The tide of battle had turned, and he says to my wife, "Madam, I cannot wait, I must go to the rear," and he left before his wounded hand had been fully dressed and bound. What became of him I never learned.

Then the ambulance with the most seriously wounded were driven into our street, turned around and went out Baltimore street, and the shrieks and groans of the poor sufferers rent the air, as tortured with mangled limbs they were being carried to the rear. These cries of woe will never pass out of my hearing.

Then there was a brief portentous lull of a moment, more terrifying than the sound of battle or the cries of the wounded. The enemy rushed into the street. My wife and little girls and a faithful domestic, Ann Leonard, and myself, all crowded into a little narrow platform at the head of the cellar stairs, behind the door, as we did not know what was next to happen, when the first words we heard from the outside were, "Don't touch that water, they have poisoned it!" referring to the buckets of water, that we had taken out for our soldiers, and which remained on the pavement. Imagine what emotions were wrought in the little flock huddled at the head of the stairs when they learned of such feelings being entertained toward us by the armed host on the street, at our door. When we found that we were not to be hurt, we came out of our hiding place, and the tired Rebels seated themselves all along the curb of the pavement, and found recreation and amusement in opening the knapsacks of the soldiers who had retreated, and taking out and reading the letters they contained. A large, fine looking officer, mounted, turned into our street, when a cheer went up from the men and he stopped and addressed them with jubilation that they had met their foes, driven them back and taken possession of the town. This officer was Gen. Monaghan of Georgia. I think the time was between three and four o'clock. My brave, fearless, pretty little oldest daughter, Mary, not then six years old put her head out of the window and sang in hearing of the Rebel soldier, "Hang Jeff Davis on a Sour Apple Tree." While the Rebels were halting resting and rejoicing, the 1st and 11th Corps of the Army of the Potomac fell back upon Cemetery Hill and Culp's Hill, undisturbed in obtaining and fortifying these strong natural positions, without let or hindrance from their boasting enemy, joining in the streets of Gettysburg. Works were much more important than words at such an exigency. Time may be wasted by an army, as well as by an individual. The enemy did not go on the flood tide that leads to fortune. On Thursday, the 2nd day, the dear devoted wife and mother was prostrated by sickness, and determining to seek phylician, I wound my way through the Rebel line of battle on Middle St., and on Washington street, to Chambersburg street, to Dr. Henry A. Hughes, the family physician. I had not a cent in my pocket, and the doctor, upon me at a loss through the night. There were little puddles of blood here and there in the streets. Gettysburg never presented a more ragged and forbidding appearance before or since. The dear wife, who had been seen recovered, and we went to the cellar, the walls affording a refuge from the incessant cannonading. Our baby would sleep in our arms. Tiring of the heat and of this position, I ventured up stairs to the second floor and opened slightly the outside shutter of a window, to take a little look around. I had a presentiment that it was not a safe place, and had just turned myself away, when a minute ball came crashing through the shutter and sash of the window, in direct line with where my breast had been a few seconds before, entered the foot board of the bed in which my sick wife had been, and passed into the mattress out of which it was picked. Again I learned that the indulgence of curiosity at such a time was perilous. I was probably discovered at the window, when the shot was fired. The air was full of missiles sent by the opposing batteries of the two armies. I hid in the cellar to observe the difference in the sound of solid ball, shell, and canister. When I found that these were not bad, the sense of fear was lost. On Thursday night the attack on East Cemetery Hill and Culp's Hill, was repulsed in the bright moonlight until ten o'clock. A Louisiana soldier came back to our house, exhibiting a Confederate Union sword which he had picked up on the field. Complaining of a cough which he had, we gave him a dose of Ayer's Wild Cherry Pectoral, which we had on hand in the house. I engaged in a little conversation with the Rebel soldiers in front of the house and was asked about the road and distance to Baltimore, which they seemed anxious to reach.

Friday, the 3rd day, brought its peculiar anxieties. The last great charge of Pickett had been made at dreadful disadvantage and loss, and was repulsed. The battle of Gettysburg had been decided, and the enemy was sullen and gloomy. The streets were barricaded, as an attempt to dislodge the Rebels was apprehended, and we had the distressing prospect of fighting going on around our houses. I ventured to speak to a North Carolina officer on the street, a Captain Smith, and asked him into the house, to seek his interposition to prevent harm being done to us or our home. We invited him to share in what little food we had for the evening meal. He was a perfect gentleman, and we gained the assurance of protection, so far as was in his power to afford it. We laid ourselves down not knowing what awaited us.

In the morning of Saturday, the glorious Fourth, I saw the last of the Rebels leaving Gettysburg. But then there was a new alarm, the rumor came and was entertained, that the enemy on Seminary Ridge would shell the town, and some of our people, including my good, honored father and his family, were preparing to leave it. The danger was averted, and the retreat of Lee was conducted in a deliberate and westerly way, all day Saturday. On Sunday morning I inquired where there was probably the most need of food. I was informed that men were suffering in the McPherson barn, on the Chambersburg pike. My good wife went to work, baked biscuit, prepared gruel and we gathered fresh Antwerp raspberries in our garden, and loaded up with as much as I could carry. I started on foot of course, to the barn. As a civilian, I must confess to a little trepidation in going to what was so recently the front, and hearing the firing of artillery, as the retreat was being followed up. There were parties engaged where they fell. A dead soldier in a burying the dead in the fields, blue was lying along the side of the turnpike, black and swollen from the heat and rain, disfigured beyond recognition. When I entered the barn it was crowded with the wounded of both armies, some of them having fallen four days before and without having any food, except in some cases the little hard tack in their haversacks, and without any surgical attention to their wounds. There was so many of these wounded and so closely packed together, that I was obliged to tramp on some of them in distributing my supplies. You may imagine how pleased and grateful they were for this fresh food, in their famished and suffering condition. One of them told me that as he was lying on the field, Gen. Lee had given him a drink out of his canteen. Lee's headquarters were in this locality. Many of these poor fellows must have died afterwards from anæmia.

The Christian and Sanitary Commissions were soon established and volunteer surgeons and nurses appeared. The work of burial of the dead went on, but was poorly done by details of Rebel prisoners, who when not thus engaged, were kept in the jail yard, under guard. There was a great number of dead horses on the field, and it was found very difficult to dispose of them, and there were not enough or burials enough to act as their exterminators. Consequently, they rotted there, as a result, the atmosphere was, as a result, vitiated and corrupted. When you could open the windows for the morning air, you would be assailed by the foul odor, which arose all over the field. We citizens became gradually accustomed to it, but some visitors coming from a pure atmosphere like this, were poisoned, and went home and died. The little lamb of our flock, called after her mother, Fannie, lived about three months after the battle, and her life here went on from an attack of the dreaded foe of children, diphtheria. War around the mother and the little ones in the sanctuary of the home has none of the pomp, pride and circumstances which surround it in pages of history. In the verses of the poet or in the glitter of the parade, Happy will the earth be when war shall be no more.

Two Sides to it.

If Chinese and Japanese were to exchange compliments with the Western World in regard to the conduct of business intercourse, they could tell tales of exaction, fraud, debased goods, and "junk" of varied kinds piled up upon the "heathen" which would outmatch the most extravagant stories of the same kind told by the San Francisco and Seattle dealer, or the Chicago and New York importer of Oriental wares. That the cheating (and somehow within the lines of a contract—shrewdly worded to fit the case, and in a foreign language—naturally fails altogether to appease the anger or to apologize for the wrong besides, business dealings, carried on and consummated usually through foreign agents in the treaty or other ports, are by no means a sure and complete test, or perfect revelation, of the spirit of honesty, truthfulness and fair-dealing which characterizes a nation at large. Neither is the jinnik-shaman, or the keeper of a bazaar where foreigners buy cheap truck in Yokohama, more worth to defame an entire nation than the "caddy," or the shopkeeper on the Strand of Fifth avenue, in London or New York.—From George Trumbull Ladd's "On the Business Morals of Japan" in the July "Century."

THE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

What Great Britain Owes to Holland and Pepper.

It is curious to remember that when England's commercial greatness was a-making her most serious rival was Holland. But the enterprising Dutchmen ruined their chances by their greediness. There was a popular little couplet which ran:

In matters of commerce the fault of the Dutch is giving too little and asking too much.

The whole course of English predominance abroad might have been changed if the Dutch had not "asked too much."

In the closing years of the sixteenth century they had a trade monopoly with the East Indies, and they "put up" the price of pepper to such a point that the English consumer "struck."

A meeting of London merchants made one December afternoon a decision the importance of which to England cannot be exaggerated. It was nothing less than the resolution to form a London East India company.

The petition of these merchants to good Queen Bess was granted in a royal charter of incorporation.

The company, founded at first to establish direct trade communication with the east and lower the price of pepper, soon took to itself larger purposes. Fleets of merchant ships came and went between England and India, and from the quarrel about pepper the corporation of merchants was destined, through Clive and his "baboons," to give England a vast empire—Pearson's Weekly.

The Reason.

It was Washington's birthday, and the minister was making a public speech to the children of the society.

"Now, children," he said, "we are here this morning the flags were waving and the houses were draped with bunting. What was that done for?"

"Washington's birthday," answered a youngster.

"Yes," said the minister, "last month I saw a birthday cake, and the flags were flying that day, and I did not even know I had a birthday."

"Because," said an urban, "Washington never told a lie!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The action of my kidneys was very irregular and caused me much suffering. Severe pains darted through my body and my whole health was in a run down condition. Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"A remedy which invariably acts as a tonic for the entire reproductive system. He continues 'in Helonias we have a medicinal which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent.' Dr. Ely further says: 'The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (suppressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and a general (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen.'"

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medicinal properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions, and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is generally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhoea (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Principal of Sound Banking—Call of Africa—Emmanuel Movement.

The Principles of Sound Banking.

Confidence in banks can be based only on external forces, like insurance of any losses which may occur but to actual forces directed upon the methods of business management and the quality of the assets which serve as the security for the deposits. If the managers, the deposits are safe and internal management is careful and they can have confidence in their safety. However, if a good bank gets no advantage from its sound business, it has its conservative loans, its skill in avoiding losses, and its experience that, why should it try to keep a superior standard? The insurance idea seems to be that we can have confidence in banks, if only someone will bear the losses. This is as much as to say, we are not afraid of fire, even if incendiaries are about, because we are insured; when, in truth, the only permanent confidence is due to measures which will eliminate the incendiaries. So in banking, everything is secondary to the character of the assets in the loan item.

It cannot be insisted upon too strongly that the effort to create confidence and prevent panics by insurance of deposits is going to the wrong end of the problem. The deposits can never be any safer than the assets. Therefore, if we wish to create confidence and prevent panics, every effort should be directed to securing only the safest kind of assets. This is the crux of the whole matter. To talk only of insurance, and to minimize the importance of the quality of the assets, is only to act after the damage is done; to close the stable door after the horse is gone. Of course, the insurance advocate will say that insurance will bring about safer banking methods; but of that more later on.

The insurance theorists probably mean that their scheme would prevent a panic, because it would prevent a run on any bank in the system. One would be curious to know upon what analysis of credit operations a crisis could be regarded as due merely to the state of mind which leads to a run for cash. In truth a run, a lack of confidence, is a consequence, not a cause, of panic conditions. From "Guaranty of Bank Deposits," by J. Laurence Laughlin, in the July Scribner.

The Call of Africa.

There is one profession—and only one—that a man can't be trained into or driven into, unless he's born into it as well. By this, I mean that unless a man has a natural love for it, he'll be worse than useless in it, for he will never be able to stand the grueling he's bound to get in it. That is my profession—ivory hunting. You can make a lawyer, or a merchant, or a banker, or even a doctor or a sailor out of almost any man of average intelligence, but you can't make a hunter out of him unless he was born a hunter.

Many a time I've come back from a trip, leaving half my men and all my ivory rotting in some deadly African swamp, half dead with fever, wearing that I'm done with the business for good. And some bright day, in six months, or even in three, the smell of the jungle gets into my nostrils; through all the roar of the street traffic I hear the squeal of an elephant or the coughing roar of a lion's challenge—and that settles the business. Back I go again, knowing precisely what is coming—the sweating days and chilling nights, the torments of insects and of thirst, the risks and hardships, and the privations. For once Africa has laid her spell upon a man, he's hers forever. He'll dream of her—the black tangle of forests he's broken through, hot on the trail of a wounded bull tusker; of the parched and blistered veldts he's crossed under the blazing sunlight; of the nights, those moonlit, haunted nights, when he's watched beside a runaway, waiting for the game to come down to drink, and listened to the ripple of the water on the flaps, the splash of a crocodile, the stealthy snapping of branches all around him, the scurry of monkeys overhead; listened to the vast black silence, into which all smaller sounds are cast as pebbles are dropped into a pool.—Berkeley Hutton in July Everybody's.

"The God With Us" Cure for Human Ills.

Rev. Dr. Robert MacDonald tells in the July "Woman's Home Companion" how the church is once more becoming active in the cure of human ills. Through the "Emmanuel Movement," started at Emmanuel Episcopal church in Boston, and taken up by Dr. MacDonald in his own church in Brooklyn, the church is again saying, "Arise, take up thy bed and walk."

"Where does the Emmanuel Movement differ from Christian Science? There can be said to be only one point of similarity. It is that both are desirous of getting rid of disease. But they no longer join issue than they disagree. The point of separation is in what constitutes curable and incurable malady. The Emmanuel Movement treats only functional disorders of the nervous system." Christian Science does not distinguish between functional and organic diseases. Then, again, the Emmanuel Movement works hand in hand with physicians, taking only such cases as they recommend, cases that are beyond the reach of drugs and the ordinary medical prescription.

Fifty Dollars for a Life.

Does Home-Finding pay? asks the July "Delimitator." The following is a true one from the experience of one of the oldest workers in the movement.

Several years ago an eight-year old girl came under our care, whose mother was one of the most depraved creatures of whom it is possible to conceive. She was physically, mentally and morally diseased and a morphia fiend. For a time she received out-poor relief, but finally was placed on

THE FALL OF GEN. REYNOLDS

45TH ANNIVERSARY OF DEATH OF A BRAVE PENNSYLVANIAN

How the Death of General Reynolds

Was Received by His Comrades in Arms.

Forty-five years ago, July 1st, 1863, General John F. Reynolds, a brave Pennsylvania soldier first saw Gettysburg, and an hour or two later he was carried to one of its homes dead, having been among the first to give his life in defense of his native state.

After he was shot Gen. Reynolds' body was carried across the fields to the low stone house of David Young, the last house in the borough on the west side of the Emmitsburg road. Here the body rested until it was removed to his home in Lancaster, Pa., taken there by way of Littlestown.

The following are the important references made by his brother officers in their reports to the Government:

The report of Gen. George G. Meade closes with a reference to the heroic bravery of the whole army, while he says, "I feel confident the country will never cease to bear in grateful remembrance."

"Referring to General Reynolds, General Buford having reported from General Reynolds sent for me and gave orders to bring up the balance of the corps. I pushed forward at full speed, and describing the ridges west of this town and the ravine called Willoughby's Run. "On the most westerly of these ridges General Reynolds had directed his line to be formed and was himself superintending the placing of Cutler's brigade as I rode up. I had previously sent an aide to the General for instructions. He returned with orders for me to attend to the Millerstown road, on the left of our line. I took my position behind the left wing. I had hardly done so when I learned with deep sorrow that our brave and lamented commander, Major General Reynolds, had just been shot and was no more. This melancholy event occurred in the beginning of the attack, about 10.15."

GENERAL WADSWORTH.

"On the morning of July 1, at 8 a. m., the division moved from Marsh Creek to Gettysburg under the immediate direction of our deeply lamented commander, Major General Reynolds. He turned the head of the column to the left across the fields and struck the Cashtown road about three quarters of a mile west of Gettysburg at about 10 a. m. The right became sharply engaged before the line was formed, and at this time (about 10.15 a. m.) our gallant leader fell, mortally wounded."

DEATH OF GEN REYNOLDS.

GENERAL ROWLEY.

"The First Brigade was formed on the ground chosen by our late distinguished corps commander, Major General Reynolds, to whose skillful selection of the position much of the ultimate success of our army may be attributed."

COL. WAINRIGHT.

1st New York Light Artillery.

"On our arrival we learned of the death of our commanding officer, Major General J. F. Reynolds. The second ridge is wider and smoother than that on which Seminary stand. On the south side of the pike is a house and large barn, with an apple orchard and some five acres of wood to the south of it, the rest of the ridge is cleared. It was around this house and road that the first skirmish, in which General Reynolds fell, took place."

GENERAL DOUBLEDAY.

"On the eventful morning of July

a poor farm, when we got the guardship of the child. She was a bright, attractive girl, but had no idea of right or wrong, and was very headstrong. We placed her in several homes, and finally got her into the hands of a family who saw in her the image of their lord, and for his sake were willing to be patient with her follies and their own many. The family lived in a village where she had good school advantages, but she had a propensity to talk. I will not say clearly anything she fancied in the house and give it to the children of the village. Notwithstanding this, there would come times when she felt they could not keep her any longer. At such times I would visit them and speak words of encouragement, while I would give the girl a certain lecture." Thus she grew until about seventeen years of age, when I received a letter from the father (who was almost heart-broken) saying the girl had run away and was staying at a farm house about five miles distant, that the young man she kept company with was a good industrious fellow, and was willing to marry her. I wired, "get them married at once," and at the same time I wired the clerk of the courts, giving my consent. When married the father parents took them to their home until they had time to build a house for themselves, and also gave them land on which to build, besides helping them in other ways to get started in housekeeping. The girl is now the mother of three nice children, a tidy housekeeper, and a respectable member of society. Thus a young life was saved at the cost to the public of less than fifty dollars. Did it pay?"

Giving The Criminal a Chance.

A prison sentence is in too many cases the end of a profitable human life. Judge McKenney Cleveland, of Chicago, believes a great portion of this is both cruel and unnecessary. He says in "McClure's" for July:

With simplest ceremony and only that pomp which comes from the silent gathering of great men, the body of Grover Cleveland was Friday consigned to the grave. No man of equal eminence has been interred so quietly, and yet this absence of display was befitting the man and the station which he occupied. No gaudy chaplet could add to the lustre of his name, no pealing anthem could have increased the solemnity of the occasion. Dust we are, and to dust we must return, in the physical sense, but there was none at the grave and none who thought of the meaning of the occasion but must have been more and more imbued with the belief in immortality—that everlasting, undying hope of mankind, which has been his greatest inspiration and which science and revealed religion accord the soul that cannot die.

Mr. Cleveland, after his fitful fever, sleeps well. He has sounded all the heights and depths of glory. He has touched almost every string that sounds a human note. He was not of the temperamental class which shows emotion with every passing cloud. He went to his last resting place with dignity and honor so far as his poor body, long racked with pain, is concerned, while his soul, as we all must believe, has soared to a higher sphere of action to enjoy illimitable opportunities of growth and enjoyment. There was in the simplicity of his funeral much that appeals to the best instincts of mankind. If a man dies, he shall live again and the muddy vesture of decay deserves a simple, sturdy because it was the house of a valiant spirit. We all as we look forward to the day when we also must enter the valley of the shadow of death, but sustained by an unflinching trust that we have not ended existence, but are entering upon a career, in which this present life has been a mere primary schooling.

Though bells tolled, though business houses closed and even stockholders ceased, the great thing to be considered in the death of Grover Cleveland was his life. The man who did such things and who thought such things in a time of stress and storm, who fought against principalities and powers, was at heart a simple child and he will be remembered as one "who loved his fellow men." Peace be to his ashes and illimitable immortality to his soul. The world is better because Grover Cleveland lived in it.

Bad Blood

Is the cause of all humors, eruptions, boils, pimples, scrofulous sores, or salt rheum, as well as of rheumatism, catarrh and other troubles. The greatest blood remedy for all these troubles, proved by its unequalled record of cures, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

In usual liquid form or in chocolate tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 doses $1.

None of us can ask for a better epitaph. And also there are tears for his widow and children, who have suffered the inevitable loss, but who are sustained not only by an unflinching trust in God, but by the consciousness that he is not dead but only gone before.

Grover Cleveland's monument is already erected and no man could ask for a better one.

A Commendable Offer.

At their last meeting the Menallen Township Board of Supervisors was requested by Wm. S. Adams to petition for State aid in building a piece of macadam road from Bendersville to the Tyrone township line at Mt. Tabor church, a distance of about two and a third miles. Mr. Adams added to his request the offer to pay one-half of the township's share of the expense. A majority of the Board at once accepted Mr. Adams' proposition and the petition was signed and forwarded promptly. The advantage of good roads to any community is scarcely to be estimated and this action of Mr. Adams, supported by the Menallen board, is certainly worthy of special mention and approval. This petition will doubtless receive the hearty support of the State authorities as it is directly in line with their plan of connecting county seats with a continuous line of State highway.

This action should also receive the hearty approval of Menallen tax payers for the reason that it takes care of a piece of road, which, under the old system, was very expensive to maintain and never in satisfactory condition.

Accidents Throughout the County.

As Hiram Grist of Bendersville, was walking in his yard on Sunday, he tripped over a root and fell breaking his jaw. Dr. J. G. Stover reduced the fracture.

J. Howard Bream of Cumberland township met with what might have been a serious accident one day last week. He was unloading hay with a bay fork and had started a forkful and when near the top of the barn the rafter on which the fork was fastened broke, letting it fall. The rafter struck Mr. Bream on the head knocking him from the wagon to the barn door; he was considerably bruised, but escaped serious injury.

H. J. Brinkerhoff, Sr. fell in his bed room at his home on Baltimore street June 28th, and broke his right arm between the elbow and shoulder. The arm was set by Dr. J. R. Dickson.

Harry Hoke, living on the Ziegler farm in Straban township, was knocked unconscious Friday afternoon of last week by a large pole falling upon him and striking him on the forehead. He went to open the double doors at the barn and the pole which holds the two doors together fell towards him and struck him before he was able to get out of the way. He remained unconscious for some minutes.

Miss Alta Leese, the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Leese, of Union township, while assisting her aunt, Mrs. George F. Bender of McSherrytown, in picking cherries, fell from the tree and broke her collar bone. The little girl was taken to the home of her aunt, where the fracture was reduced by Dr. A. C. Rice.

Church Dedicated.

St. Joseph's Catholic Church at Bon-neauville, which has been remodeled and refurbished at a cost of $14,000, was rededicated on Tuesday of last week by Rt. Rev. Bishop J. W. Shanahan of Harrisburg, with imposing ceremonies. There were about 25 visiting priests in attendance. The building is one of modern architecture and makes a handsome appearance. A class of young people of the parish were confirmed on the same day by Bishop Shanahan.

Through the efforts of the York and Adams Benjamen Cohen, alias L. C. Chisman, treasurer of the United Butte and Egg Company, the concern which is alleged to have victimized farmers of York, Adams and adjacent counties for at least $15,000, has been arrested in New York. About $2000 in produce has been recovered, and it is probable that more may be forthcoming. Charged with swindling and conspiracy, Cohen will be extradited. It has been learned that a similar concern, believed to be the same parties, had played the same trick in other Pennsylvania towns and New York.

Drowned in a Quarry.

On Monday of last week David Staub, 15 years old, an employee of the Heel & Innersole Co., Hanover, met death by drowning in an abandoned quarry on the farm of Andrew J. Reibert about 3-4 mile north-west of Hanover. Young Staub was accompanied by three other boys. After playing ball during the evening the boys went to the quarry to take a swim. Staub got upon a rock and after exclaiming "here goes, boys," jumped into the deepest part of the quarry. He came to the surface twice but made no outcry. The last time he disappeared he remained beneath the water. His companions, who were much smaller boys, became fearful and ran to their homes, where they made known the occurrence.

Work was begun immediately to recover the body by dragging; this, however, on account of the depth of the water—about 10 feet, was found impracticable, and two young men living in the vicinity took off their clothes and after diving located the body in the deepest part of the quarry. The unfortunate young man was a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Staub, formerly of New Oxford. Besides his parents he is survived by several brothers and sisters.

Disastrous Runaway.

A distressing runaway accident occurred on Sunday morning in which four persons were severely injured, three of whom were citizens of Littlestown. O. L. Slagenhaupt and wife, and Mrs. Brockley, of Littlestown, and Mrs. Mann, of Jersey City, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Slagenhaupt were on their way to Thurmont. On the steep hill on the other side of Harney, known as Sells hill, the backing strap broke, and the horse made a mad dash down the hill, the carriage striking the wing wall of bridge, throwing occupants against the wall. Mr. Slagenhaupt had his shoulder badly hurt and severely shocked and bruised; Mrs. Slagenhaupt had a deep gash cut from forehead to ear, between 7 and 8 inches long, and internally hurt; Mrs. Brockley deep cut on forehead over top of skull, badly shocked; Mrs. Mann hand hurt and bruised. The horse was not hurt and the carriage received little injury. The badly injured were placed on cots and conveyed to Littlestown where their injuries were dressed by Dr. Crouse. At this writing they are resting comfortably.

Boy Badly Burned.

Howard Monigan, the 14 year old son of John Monigan, residing near Rouzerville, was picking cherries from a tree which stands close to the C. G. & W. trolley tracks. The limb upon which the boy was sitting gave way and in falling the lad was thrown across the trolley and electric light wires, which are strung upon the same poles. Grasping two of the wires his hands were burned into the bone several of the fingers on his right hand being amputated by the physician who attended him. His left foot was also badly burned but the lad, although unconscious for some time, is not thought to be fatally injured.

How Freight is "Lost" by Improper Marking.

Indicative of the annoyance to which shippers as well as railroads are subjected, by reason of the failure to properly mark freight consigned for shipment, and of the necessity for the new rule, of the "Official Classification," requiring that all "less-than-car-load" freight be plainly marked with the name and address of the consignee, is the fact that there has just been held by the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pittsburgh a four days' sale of over-freight, in which were involved seven cars of miscellaneous merchandise, and one car containing over forty tons of iron, steel, etc., much of which brought at auction very much less than the real value.

In the lot were castings which were doubtless made to order, which would have been of value for the purpose intended, but as there were no identifying marks, it was impossible to locate either the consignee or the shipper, and they were sold at practically scrap iron prices.

The new rule to be enforced after July 1 by the 416 railroads in the "Official Classification" territory—East of the Mississippi and North of the Ohio River—is as follows:

"Rule 3.—Each package, bundle or piece of less than carload freight must be plainly marked by brush, stencil, pasted, labeled or securely fastened tag, showing the name of consignee, and the name of the station, town or city, and the State to which destined (See Note).

The marks on packages, bundles or pieces must be compared with the shipping order and bill of lading and corrections, if necessary, made by the consignee or his representative before receipt of same. Old marks must be removed or effaced before packages, bundles or pieces will be accepted for transportation.

Freight consigned to a place where there are two or more of the same name in the same State, must have the name of the County marked on each package, bundle or piece, and also shown on the shipping receipt.

When freight is consigned to a place not located on the line of a railroad, each package, bundle or piece must be marked with the name of the station at which the consignee will accept delivery, or if destined to a place reached by a water-line, the name of the railroad station at which delivery is to be made to such water-line must be marked on each package, bundle or piece.

Freight not marked in accordance with the foregoing rules will not be accepted for transportation.

Note.—Pasted labels or securely fastened tags should be used only when the character of the freight prevents marking by brush or stencil."

occasion in about a hundred words the only platform adopted. Martin Van Buren of New York, Jackson's own selection, was named for the vice presidency.

Prior to 1832 presidential candidates were nominated by mass meetings, caucuses, legislative resolutions and by other ways not national in character. In the Baltimore convention all the states except Missouri were represented by delegates. Since 1832 the Democrats have held quadrennial conventions, and eight of them, including the first, have met at Baltimore.

At President Jackson's instance the convention which named candidates for the election of 1836 met May 29, 1835, nearly eighteen months prior to election day, thus giving Martin Van Buren and Richard M. Johnson, the nominees, the longest campaign in the history of the party.

AN OLD CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

EAST BERLIN, June 29.—Priscilla Miller, another old citizen who was born and raised here has passed away. She was doing her household work in the forenoon, getting dinner at 11 o'clock; her daughter who works in the factory came home about 11:30. After her arrival home her mother suddenly took sick and Dr. H. B. Hoechst, who soon after arrived, found she was suffering with strangulated hernia. The doctor saw at once that nothing but an operation could possibly save her life, and at once phoned to the York Hospital, and Drs. Bacon and King, with a trained nurse, arrived about 7 o'clock p. m., who immediately performed the operation. The aged lady apparently stood the operation and seemed to be getting along nicely, but about 5 o'clock the next morning she took a turn for the worse and death came to her relief at 5:30 a. m. She was aged 82 years and 3 months. She will be buried tomorrow from the house—interment in Paradise Church graveyard.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Lapham and Mrs. Jane Ulrich, both of this place. Also two brothers, William Miller of East Berlin, and Daniel Miller of Gettysburg.

A Bad Spill.

Jacob Stick, of near Bart's church, Union township, went to Hanover one day last week with a two-mule team. He was accompanied by a boy, and at the end of the car line on Frederick street met with an accident which might have proved serious. As it was, Mr. Stick escaped with several bruises while the boy escaped altogether uninjured. Mr. Stick and the boy were seated upon the wagon on which was loaded a calf, and behind the wagon was chained a large bull. While driving along quietly the bull became frightened, got his head and shoulders under the wagon bed and upset it, throwing the occupants to the ground with the wagon bed on top of them. The mules started to run away, when, fortunately, the wagon uncoupled, leaving the hind wheels and the wagon bed behind which saved the man and boy from being dragged to death. The mules were caught a short distance from the scene of the accident.

Electric Lights for Upper End.

There is a rumor going around that the upper end of the county is about to have an electric light plant in near future. Capitalists from the city were in that section last week looking over the ground and in consultation with local parties concerning different phases of the matter. The works will be supplied at the station in Berlin, Md. Inglewille, Arden, and other places will all be supplied, and from the one plant the length of which has a 200 ft. run down to the river. It is also said that it is the intention of these promoters to put out the lines of the plant to the town.

In addition to lighting the town, which could also be used to light the houses along the roads over which the line will run and in this way the line in the entire south of the county would be supplied with light.

Davis & Co.'s store will be open all day on the Fourth of July.
